Costs Less Goes Farther

And is Best for 85% of All Farm Uses

If looks count with you use white or evaporated salt for table or dairy use. But for all other uses, which will total at least 85%, you will not only save money but will get better results if you use Western Crushed Rock Salt. This is because it is 12% purer than white salt—is not bleached or adulterated in any manner—is in fact, 98% pure salt. It costs less at the start than white salt—and it goes at least 1/3 farther. Get a barrel or sack—it's ideal for curing meats, hides, hay, straw and silage; for ice and ice cream making; for feeding stock, for killing weeds, and dozens of other purposes.
